Lee asked if catering was organized yet. Johnson noted that there was discussion around catering more “Navajo dishes” rather than sandwiches. The group discussed who could provide catering of Mutton Stew. It was decided that Mae Franklin and Kelsey Lee would reach out to caterers and get a price to Johnson as soon as possible.

It was mentioned that the number of people to be fed is uncertain at this time because attendance has never been consistent. The group decided that between 20-25 lunches would be a good estimate.
